ARCANA GOETIA · PROTOCOL

The first seven days of a Goetia practice

One spirit per day. One aim, one command, one entry in the log. No results promised, no rush.

How to use this

This is a structure, not a spellbook. It takes the seven best-known spirits of the Ars Goetia and gives each one day: the correspondences recorded in the grimoire, the command the app uses, and one task you can finish in ten minutes.

The rule that matters: write the aim before the ritual, and log it after. Without that, a month later you are remembering, not comparing. Arcana Goetia stores the log on your device, which is the only reason the app is worth having next to a printed grimoire.

What you need

- Ten minutes a day, at the planetary hour if you can.
- One sentence per day, countable.
- The app, for the seal, the hour and the log.

The Goetia's figures are treated here as part of a historical tradition with a living practice around them. This document does not promise outcomes, and the ethics and consequences of any working are yours.

Bael

King · 66 Legions · Sun in Fire · Sunday, Dawn

Bael is a King reigning in the East. He has the power to make the operator invisible and subtle.

| Optimal window | Sunrise, first planetary hour of Sun on Sunday |

The command

EXEC BAEL_STELTH --invisible

Today's task

Open with something you want to keep unseen: a decision, a move, a piece of work not ready to be shown.

1. Write the aim in one sentence, present tense, countable.
2. Open the app, choose Bael, and check the planetary hour for your location.
3. Keep the seal in view and say the command once.
4. Log the working before you close the app: date, aim, window.

Nothing in this protocol promises a result. It is a structure for doing the work and recording it.

2. Open the app, choose Astaroth, and check the planetary hour for your location.
3. Keep the seal in view and say the command once.
4. Log the working before you close the app: date, aim, window.

Nothing in this protocol promises a result. It is a structure for doing the work and recording it.

After day seven

Seven entries in the log are worth more than seven rituals without notes. Read them in this order:

1. Which aim came closest to what you actually wanted?
2. Did you work at the hour you wrote down, or whenever you had time?
3. What changed that you would have done anyway?

That third question is the one that separates practice from wishful thinking.

Continue in the app: all 72 spirits, the seal for each one, the planetary hour from your location, the ritual screen and the log. $3.99 once, offline, no account.
